Architect Thierry Despont transforms a forlorn Long Island residence into a pristine oceanfront hideaway for Broadway producer Daryl Roth

From top: The colonnaded deck is appointed with a suite of McKinnon and Harris furniture with cushions of a Perennials fabric. The pool-side chaises and side tables are also by McKinnon and Harris. Opposite, clockwise from top left: At one end of the great room, a Nakashima-style table by BDDW mingles with a Holly Hunt console. Anthony Lawrence Belfair made the room's club chair, matching footstool, and large sofa, the latter of which is upholstered in a Gretchen Bellinger fabric; the carpet is by Marc Phillips Decorative Rugs. Despont outfitted the curved seating alcove with a custom-designed sofa and a circa-1960 Vladimir Kagan rocking chair and ottoman.
